A Habit That Pleased.

"So you have thought it over carefully and decided that young Money-blower is the man you must marry?" said her father gravely.

"Yes, father" the young woman replied.

"Are you sure that his habits are such as will make for a happy married life?"

"Yes, indeed. He buys a new motorcar every year, and that's just the sort of habit I want my husband to have."

The Wedding Ring.

Why should the wedding ring be placed on the third finger of the left hand? The custom has existed for ages, and the reason therefor has been given as follows: Our ancestors found the left hand more convenient for such ornaments than the right, for the reason that it is generally less employed than the latter. For the same reason they chose the third instead of another finger. The third digit is not only less used than the others, but it better adapted to guard a ring against bruises, since that finger has this quality peculiar to itself—it cannot be extended but in company with some other finger, whereas the rest may be singly stretched to their full length.

HARVESTING RESUMED.

Sunny Weather Brings Joy to the Western Farmer.

Winnipeg, Sept. 3.—The weather map of the Canadian prairie west for the week was ideal, almost every district reporting brighter skies and drying winds while on neither Saturday nor Sunday night did the temperature drop below 34. As a consequence, farmers were putting in a busy Labor Day and the whirl of the binder, after practically a week's suspension through dampness, is again heard in every district. Every indication points to the weather as set fair, and if this is maintained during the current week, a tremendous hole will be cut in standing grain.

The difficulty is to find labor sufficient to throw it up into stacks, and with sheaves lying on the fields farmers will be little better off than if the grain was left standing. Practically every available unemployed man in this city has now been drafted out and the Labor Day parade yesterday morning was remarkable for the absence of the usual crowd of idle hangers-on to the skirts of organized labor.

More harvest trains are expected from the east to-day and to-morrow, and they will be rapidly distributed. Owing to high wages and great demand for labor south of the international boundary, the quota of harvesters furnished from there has been disappointingly small.

national boundary, the quota of harvesters furnished from there has been disappointingly small.

To Get Men From U. S.

Ottawa, Sept. 3.—The Government is endeavoring to get men to harvest the western crops from the United States. The maritime provinces, which in other years supplied armies of harvesters, are not responding as well as expected this year. The same is true of Ontario and Quebec. The immigration authorities are therefore arranging to bring hands from across the border.

Dispensation from the usual regulations governing the Alien Labor Laws are being temporarily brought into force, and special low rates for harvesters are being secured on U. S. railways. It is hoped that in this way sufficient harvest hands can be secured.

British Labor Congress.

London, Sept. 3.—Nearly two million trade unionists were represented by five hundred delegates at the congress which opened yesterday at Newport, Monmouth, and many new and important issues will be raised for the first time.

One of these is the question of syndicalism, as opposed to the more moderate methods hitherto adopted of attaining trade union ends. A resolution is proposed calling for the reaffirmation of syndicalism principles of amalgamation with the national union of dock laborers.

One of the unions in the Transport Workers' Federation will move an amendment expressing approval of the principle of amalgamation where practicable, but repudiating in explicit terms the propaganda for syndicalism. The measure of success or failure attending the syndicalists' efforts will be determined by the attitude of the miners, who have not yet declared themselves on this subject.

Kaiser Reviews Big Army.

Berlin, Sept. 3.—Emperor William passed in review yesterday the most powerful army ever gathered in Berlin in time of peace. It is comprised of 60,000 men and composed artillery, cavalry, engineers and auxiliary troops of the Guards and of the Third Army Corps.

The army flying corps took part in the parade for the first time since its formation. Eight aeroplanes and two dirigible balloons under the guidance of officer-aimmen flew at the head of the marching columns as they passed the Emperor. His Majesty stood beneath the solitary poplar in the centre of the great Templehof parade grounds and returned the salute of the troops as they went by.

Girl's Death Suspicious.

FLOODS TAKE 22 LIVES

Cloudbursts Work Havoc in Southern Pennsylvania.

Terrible Storm Which Sweeps Part of Quaker State, Panhandle of Virginia, and a Section of Ohio, Cause Damage at Present Incalculable—Death List May Reach 33.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 3.—At least 22 known to be dead and 11 others believed to have perished are the results of a terrific storm which swept Western and Northern Pennsylvania, the Panhandle district of West Virginia and a section of Eastern Ohio. Sunday night and early yesterday. The monetary loss cannot even be estimated at this time.

After a 24-hours' period of excessively hot weather the storm broke Sunday evening. In addition to an extraordinary rainfall, the electrical features were most spectacular. The steady rain caused every stream to leave its banks. Within a short time the water had washed away railroad tracks in many places and sent tons of earth from surrounding hills, making all thoroughfares in the flood zone impassable.

Latest reports give the following table of fatalities: Colliers, W. Va., nine dead. It is estimated that 20 persons met death. Cherry Valley, Pa., six drowned. Burgettstown, Pa., one drowned. Avella, Pa., three drowned. Cannonsburg, Pa., three drowned.

During the night this city experienced the storm. The suburbs suffered severely, cellars being flooded, street cars crippled and wire service prostrated. In a number of Western Pennsylvania points people became panic-stricken. At Newcastle, Pa., congregations were dismissed by ministers when announcements were made that a flood was headed for the town. At Fort City, Pa., a dozen houses were washed from their foundations. Lighting struck a score of houses while McGrab, a suburb, is under three to five feet of water.

Oil derricks were blown down, small streams flooded and scores of persons

DEMANDS ARBITRATION

Britain Will Insist on Taking Canal Dispute to Hague.

Official Announcement That the Recent Panama Toll Bill Passed by the U. S. Congress Will Be Protested Under the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty and Full Arbitration Asked Under Root-Bryce Treaty.

London, Sept. 3.—It is officially announced that the British Government will make a formal demand upon the United States Government for arbitration of its claim that the Panama Canal Toll Act, as recently passed by the United States Congress, violates the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

Nothing definitely is known here beyond the brief official announcement that the formal demand for arbitration would be made, but it is believed that instructions already are en route to the British Embassy at Washington concerning the situation. The British demand will be made under the arbitration convention of 1908. Great Britain's contention will be that the question at issue does not affect the vital interests, independence or honor of the United States, and that therefore it is clearly within the scope of the 1908 convention, since the matter to be arbitrated is not an act of congress, but an interpretation of Article 3 of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

Recent advices from Washington indicate that the United States Government, should it hold firm in its determination not to arbitrate, will take refuge in Article 2 of the Root-Bryce Arbitration treaty of 1908.

That article makes it a prerequisite to actual arbitration that both sides "shall conclude a special agreement defining clearly the matter in dispute," and this must be approved by the Senate. So that if that body takes the same view next winter of the predominant rights of America in the use of the canal, as it did last session, it may prevent arbitration by declining to accept any "special agreement" satisfactory to Great Britain.

North Bay, Sept. 3.—Five dead and ten severely injured was the toll taken by an accident on the Canadian Pacific near Mattawa on Saturday morning, when a work train engaged in ballasting the tracks, while running caboose first, collided with a fast through freight train.

The dead and injured, with the exception of Conductor Thos. Duncan, were all residents of Mattawa. Conductor Duncan was a young, unmarried man, residing with his mother and sister at North Bay.

No blame is attached to the crew of the fast freight, as it was the duty of the men in charge of the work train to give the freight a clear track. The casualty list is:

Dead—Thomas Duncan, conductor of the work train; Thomas O'Keefe, Feliz, Chenier, August Desjardines, and Ernest Chenier, laborers.

Injured—Thomas McManus, foreman of work train; Peter Morrison, brakeman; Wm. Roach, fireman; Sig-fried Joudoin, Adelard Bertrand, Damas Chenier, Matthew Cyr, Alfred Bahgs, Neil McCalpin, Clarence Mc-Calpin.

The injured are all doing well in Mattawa hospital, with every prospect of recovery.

More Pay For Teachers.

St. Catharines, Sept. 3.—Hon. Dr.
Pyne was the guest of the public and high school board on Labor Day, when he officially opened the new $40,000 Victoria public school, in the northeastern section of the city. In the evening he officiated at the opening of the new assembly hall and gymnasium erected at the Collegiate Institute. He spoke to large audiences on both occasions, recalling difficulties which he encountered as a member of the Board of Education at Toronto.
He also spoke on the present scarcity of qualified teachers in Ontario, and stated that the movement now on foot would grant them better remuneration in future. Mayor Merritt and the members of the school board also spoke on both occasions.

Taft Surprised.

Beverly, Mass., Sept. 3.—The announcement that Great Britain will appeal to The Hague Tribunal to settle its claim of violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty by the Panama Canal act came as a surprise to President Taft. He had heard reports that such an appeal was contemplated, but was of the opinion that the matter would be taken up in the usual diplomatic way.

The President was not ready last night to make an expression about the appeal to The Hague. He had no official word from the State Department, and did not expect to consider the case until he reaches Washington Wednesday.

Cat Turned White.

A remarkable transformation of a cat's fur by temperature has been reported. A black cat was accidentally shut in the refrigerating chamber of a mail steamer in Sydney harbor, and was not discovered until about thirty-two days later, when the ship was off Aden. The cat was scarcely recognizable, the fur having become long and thick, changing to white on the back.
Brought out into the intense heat of the Red Sea, the heavy white coat rapidly fell out and the normal coat was restored.

Guessing the Cheese.

The time-honored ceremony of guessing the dimensions of the cheese after luncheon at Simpson's, Cheapside, London, found an accurate guess-er the other day in Mr. John Longley, whose figures—height, 13 inches; girth, 27 inches; weight, 21 pounds—proved to be correct. In accordance with custom, the manager marked the occasion by standing champagne all round. The dimension of the cheese have only been guessed accurately nine times in twenty years.

Why Women Are Not RICH.

Man is a millionaire many times over in the possession of blood cells. Woman is not quite so rich, for scientists have proven that the normal man has five million—the woman only four and a half million to a cubic millimetre of blood.

A decrease in number of red blood corpuscles and a person "looks pale"—in fact, is anaemic, the blood does not get the right food and probably the stomach is disordered.

Dr. R. V. Pierce found years ago that a glyceric extract of golden seal and Oregon grape roots, queen's root and bloodroot with black cherrybark, would help the assimilation of the food in the stomach, correct liver ills and in Nature's own way increase the red blood corpuscles. This medicine he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. By assimilating the food eaten the system is nourished and the blood takes on a rich red color. Nervousness is only "the cry of the starved nerves for food," and when the nerves are fed on rich red blood the person loses those irritable feelings, sleeps well at night and is refreshed in the morning.

"I was attacked with a severe nervous disease, which was caused by a disordered stomach and liver," writes MR. JAS. D. LIVELY, of Washburn, Tenn., Route 2, Box 32. "All my friends thought I would die and the best physicians gave me up. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and derived much benefit from same. My case had run so long, it had become so chronic that nothing would effect a permanent cure, but Dr. Pierce's medicine has done much for me and I highly recommend it. I heartily advise its use as a spring tonic, and further advise ailing people to take Dr. Pierce's medicines before their diseases have run so long that there is no chance to be cured."

THE MOTOR DERBY.

Tractors Are Making Their Way In Rural Canada.

Traction farming is always of keen interest to the young man. Nothing on the farm will hold his attention longer than the rigging up of any machinery whereby labor can be saved and his own ingenuity vindicated. The production of the wheat fields of Western Canada would be at present impossible without a tractor. It is also invading the live stock farmer's domain, and steam and gasoline, as well as kerosene and electricity, are to play very important parts in the evolution of Canadian farming says Eliud Kester in The Farmers' Magazine.

When the first agricultural motor contest was held in Winnipeg five years ago there were not three hundred gas tractors employed on farms of the Canadian West. The fifth annual meet which has just closed at Winnipeg, the great distributing centre of the West, sees the number of tractors magnificently increased. It is estimated that there are over four thousand gas tractors and about five thousand steam tractors employed by Canadian farmers. The year 1911 was considered to be a big year on engine sales but this year has already proved to be a big one, and Winnipeg, where the "Motor Derby" is held is the great gateway of this extensive and great field of manufacturing activity.

Large crowds were present each day of the contest. The farmers were so eager to inspect the work of the various engines in the plowing contests that they journeyed out to the 200 acre tract nine miles west of Winnipeg even on a rainy day when all operations had to be called off. The first part of the motor competition which included all the brake contests of the numerous engines, steam and gasoline, took place on the Exhibition grounds during the first week of the fair. This exhibition work only proved a good feeder for the real agricultural contests that were to take place the following week at Berger.

Each of the three divisions in the competition, the brake contest, the engine contest and the plowing contest, allowed entries by three classes of machines. The engines were divided into classes determined by their power.

The contest for the engines, each having plows, required them to make six miles. The machine is judged on the amount of power used the fuel

HEROIC DOCTOR.

Medical Men Who Have Died In Struggle With Disease.

Amongst physicians of to-day there is a sort of superstition that a man who specializes in any particular disease will become its victim, sooner or later. This superstition has certainly not arisen without much cause, for medical history of the last few years teems with instances of men who, fighting against disease in the cause of humanity, have succumbed to it themselves.

Take, for instance, the case of Dr. Arthur Sharp at Nottingham, whose death last year illustrates the dangers associated with surgical work. This doctor conducted a post-mortem on the body of a child who died from a virulent form of blood-poisoning. An abrasion of the skin on one of his hands resulted in he himself contracting blood poisoning, and in spite of all scientific skill could suggest, he succumbed after a painful illness.

About the same time death put an end to the suffering of Mr. Harry W. Cox, the X-ray martyr, who contracted the dreaded malady known as X-ray dermatitis, through accidentally putting a tube of the apparatus near his face. It might be mentioned that the agony caused by this disease is so excruciating as to resist even the power of opiates. Mr. Cox, however, is by no means the only pioneer of X-ray surgery who has thus suffered.

Many readers will doubtless remember the case of Dr. Hall Edwards, the X-ray specialist, who has had both hands destroyed by the Rontgen rays. Then there was the well-known French doctor, M. Radiguet, who for two years devoted himself to the study of the X-rays as curative agents. He repeatedly subjected himself to their influence, and in the end he contracted X-ray dermatitis, dying after months of agony in 1905.

The death of Dr. Allen MacFayden in London four years ago was due to a combination of two diseases which he contracted in the course of his search for a preventive of disease. He was conducting a series of experiments with the bacteria of typhoid and malaria fever, with a view to discovering a vaccine to prevent these diseases. By an accident he contracted both, and his name was added to the roll of martyrs in the laboratory.

It is pleasant to turn from such pathetic instances to the triumphant and successful career of Major Ross.

PRESS COMMENTS.

St. Thomas Journal.—As the cool weather approaches it takes a man with great self-control to gaze on his empty coal-bin without showing emotion.

Windsor Record.—The annual bluff about a threatened short of coal is being worked off on the public, although we are not much concerned here, with a plentiful supply of natural gas.

Kingston Whig.—The land tax will be an issue in the next legislature, and let us hope it will be a non-political issue. No town or city can expect to succeed that taxes its improvements.

Hamilton Herald.—The fact that the London customs house officials have been seeing snakes will no doubt be seized upon by angry office-seekers as an evidence that it was high time for a shake-up in the staff.

Montreal Witness.—Mr. White is to be congratulated on being able to pay off $6,500,000 of the Dominion's obligations. Mr. Fielding is also to be congratulated on having left Mr. White the means of doing so.

London Advertiser.—In this country 85 per cent. of the boys and girls leave school at 14 years of age. It is assumed that they are equipped for the battle of life, and we boast of the superior quality of our civilization.

Quebec Chronicle.—The nations of the earth may prudently turn their eyes towards the Council of the Hague as a court of ultimate appeal, now that Mr. Taft has spit upon his own self-respect and made such a guy of his veto.

London Free Press.—With British nobility settling on fruit farms near Toronto, more British nobility on western grain farms and ranches and French nobility coming to Lambton County, the agriculturists of Canada are rapidly becoming the bon-ton of the land.

Halifax Chronicle.—The people of Canada will await with interest Mr. Borden's announcement of his naval programme on his return from England. They will be interested to learn whether he is of the same mind as he was in 1909 or in 1910 or in 1911, or whether he is preparing to turn a fourth handspinning on this question.

Vancouver Sun.—Patriotism is an admirable quality when intelligently displayed by a strong, honest and self-reliant people. In Canada it is more or less a relative term. An English writer once denominated it the last resort of sound minds. The Special Interest of this country have given an illustration of the English writer's conception of it.

Kingston Standard.—Is it not about time we did away with race track gambling in Canada? Here are two young bank clerks in Toronto ruined by betting on the races with $50,000 of bank money. No arguments can be advanced in favor of betting that will outweigh the plain facts in these two cases. No further proof is needed that gambling on the races should be put an end to.

power. The contest for the engines, each having plows, required them to make six miles. The machine is judged on the amount of power used, the fuel consumed and the general endurance displayed. While the field was rather stony and of a heavy soil, conditions were more favorable for the heavy engines than was the tract that was chosen last year for the test where so many steam tractors almost got lost in the mud. Perhaps it was not a bad matter of policy for the directors of this competition to secure a good, hard clay for the work. It must have occasioned considerable chagrin to the manufacturers of the heavy engines in any contest where a little gasoline tractor might have the opportunity of pulling them out of the hole.

The regulations for the competition of plows were similar to those for engines. They could be drawn by any engine and were judged according to the amount of power that was required to pull them.

Woman-Worship In the North.

James Oliver Curwood, author of "The Flower of the North," tells the following story about the men to be found in the country about Hudson Bay, where the scene of his story is laid: "I was at Prince Albert," he says, "sitting on the verandah of the little old Windsor Hotel, facing the Saskatchewan. During the few days previous a number of factors, trappers, and half-breed canoe men had come down from the north. One of these men had not been down to the edge of civilization for seven years. Three of the others had not been down in two, and this was the annual trip of the other eight—for there were just eighteen of us sitting there together. We were smoking and talking when a young woman turned up the narrow walk leading to the verandah. Immediately every voice was hushed, and as the woman came up the steps those twelve, roughly-clad men of the wilderness rose to their feet to a man, each holding his cap in his hand. Thus they stood, silent and with bowed heads, until the young woman had passed into the hotel. It was the most beautiful tribute to womanhood I had ever seen. And I, the man from civilization, was the only one who remained sitting, with my hat still on my head!"

China Resents Demand.

London, Sept. 3.—Deep resentment is felt in China over the British demand in regard to Tibet. Many of the Chinese merchants in Tien Tsu and other cities threaten retaliation for what they regard as an insult, and propose to boycott all British goods entering Chinese ports, according to a news agency despatch received here yesterday.

Found Husband Dead In Bed.

down, and his name was added to the roll of martyrs in the laboratory. It is pleasant to turn from such pathetic instances to the triumphant and successful career of Major Ross, who was awarded the Nobel prize for medicine in 1902, for his invaluable work in verifying the mosquito origin of malaria fever. Major Ross, who spent eighteen years in the Indian Medical Service, commenced a special study of malaria in 1892, and his researches took him into the deadliest districts of West Africa, where for months he risked his life every hour, night and day, for the cause of medical science and humanity.

Better Than Men?

Whether women are morally better than men is a very old question which is not likely to be answered satisfactorily by statistics, but some figures in the reports of the recently taken British census are interesting as bearing on the subject.

There are in British prisons 1,000 men to 139 women; in certified reformatory industrial schools, 1,000 men to 278 women; in workhouse establishments, 1,000 men to 655 women. The workhouse, of course, means poverty, but that may come from moral degeneracy or lack of moral fiber. These figures make a showing in favor of women which is increased by consideration of the fact that the census shows 1,340,000 more women than men in the kingdom's population of 45,365,000.

It can be argued, of course, that most women and girls are sheltered in homes and have fewer opportunities of committing offenses against the law; that often they are not prosecuted for acts that men would be prosecuted for doing, and that timidity rather than real goodness causes very many women to refrain from crime. But the figures alone are strongly supportive of the popular impression that women are better than men.

The Conquest of Pain.

If what is claimed for it be true a remarkable discovery in surgery has been made by F. W. Forbes Ross, a well-known doctor of London. It is no less than the conquest of pain. Human pain, as a result of injury or operation, will be abolished. The remedy consists of a preparation of quinine and urea hydrochloride. Dr. Ross declares that it is cheap, non-poisonous and absolutely harmless. The anesthetic is distributed over the nerve supply of the part concerned, and a patient treated thus feels no pain after the operation. Dr. Ross points out how particularly great a blessing to delicate women and children this application of prolonged local anesthesia must prove. The injected area is quite numbed in five minutes or less.

On the site of the Roman city at Corstopitum, Corbridge, Northumberland, England, has been found a large altar bearing the inscription: Disciplinae avgvstorum leg ii avgv—"To the discipline of the Emperors (dedicated by) the Second (Augustan) Legion." A stone originally erected by the Seventh Cohort of the Thirteenth Legion and a relief of Hercules brandishing a club have also been found there. A Roman villa has been discovered at Hambledon, Buckinghamshire.

cases. No further proof is needed that gambling on the races should be put an end to.

Ottawa Citizen.—Those who remember the drift of young Canadians across the line a score of years ago will realize how the tables and the tide have been turned in the last year or so. Not only are Americans entering the Canadian west by thousands, but many young men are crossing over to Kingston and are finding remunerative employment there. Canada is doing much more to-day than holding her own.

Vancouver Province.—Shall this Dominion, occupying at present so happy a position, enjoying abounding prosperity and overflowing revenues, with a wealth of resources almost unmatched among the nations—shall this Dominion haggle over the expenditure of a few millions for the protection of the finest heritage of Anglo-Saxon civilization, the British Empire? Shall it split hairs over the question of autonomy? Surely not. Our duty seems plain and let us acquit ourselves like men.

Guelph Herald.—The lesson is one that all young people should profit by. First of all, let them remember that "honesty is the best policy," and that it never yet paid a man to "borrow" other people's money, still less to do so in order to pay for folly. In this age young people think they know more than their elders—they imagine they are smarter. The scales will fall from their eyes sooner or later, but in the meantime let the young man lay on his mind that no man, young or old, can consistently "beat the races," still less "beat the banks," and get away safely for any length of time. Detection and Nemesis come sometime without fail.

Hamilton Spectator.—If there is to be a federal department of public health, let special pains be taken that it shall not become a federal department of medicine. Let an expert be found, like Mr. Mausegh, of England, who would be to the science of sanitary engineering in Canada what Sir Sanford Fleming has been to our railroad engineering. Give him all the help he wants on the medical side of his business, but in his own sphere let him be supreme. Thus very soon we shall have all we require in a matter which neither the Canadian Medical Society nor any one school of medicine should be encouraged to regard as its particular preserve.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. ## MEMOIRS OF SELKIRK

HOLLAND RIVER WAS SCENE OF SOME OF THEIR STRUGGLES.

Seventeen Families, Totalling Fifty Persons, Weary of the Struggles of the Colony on the Red River Returned to Ontario and Settled in Simcoe County Where Their Descendants Still Live.

The Holland River winds lazily through the rich farms and low lands of Simcoe County. It has little title to fame other than its association with that little band of fugitives from Lord Selkirk's Red River expedition, who nearly a century ago, watched for weeks the steady, tireless dip of the paddle through rough waters, until the smooth Holland River led them into their desired haven, says Janet Grant Needham in the Star Weekly.

Quite recently interest centred around Winnipeg and the opening of the "Selkirk Centennial" by His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, an occasion made memorable by the arrival in 1812, at the fork of the Red and Assiniboine Rivers of numerous families of colonists from Scotland and the Isles and known everywhere as the Selkirk settlers. The clarion call has sounded and hundreds of their descendants, as well as many from all points in Ontario, do honor to the memory of that nobleman, through whose generosity and kindness they were enabled to reach this land of plenty and freedom.

The experiences peculiar to early settlement life among the peoples of our Dominion are very similar. In nothing, perhaps, does the real character of the individual reveal itself so much as in the way difficulties are overcome, obstacles surmounted, and the goal of success finally reached or missed. The first settlers coming to America under peculiarly trying conditions have stood the test and proven their worth, wherever they be found.

During 1812-14, two hundred and eighty-three colonists enlisted under the Earl of Selkirk (then president of the Hudson Bay Co.), to the Red River district, that part of Rupert's Land, now in the Province of Manitoba. The journey was long and toilsome, involving twelve weeks in a sailing vessel, before they landed at York Factory on Hudson Bay. This part of America, the home of the Indian and the half-breed or "Metis," was disturbed by serious differences between the Hudson Bay and the North-West fur companies at this coming of the agriculturist. A climax was reached. By means of Indian jargon, Gaelic, broken English, and mongrel French, the new-comers realized their danger, and escaped seventy miles south to Pembina, U.S., for safety. Here they lived in huts and tents, bartering even their clothing for food till the friendly Indian taught them how to secure animal food through the deep snow. They returned in the spring to their ruined land, and homes around Fort Douglas to begin life anew. Later, through serious attacks on life and property, culminating in the regrettable incident at "Seven Oakes," June 19th, 1816, one hundred and thirty-four of these "strangers in a strange land" determined to leave for Upper Canada. They were aided in this by the North-West Co., their rivals. Under Duncan Cameron, against much opposition, they succeeded in securing the guns and making their escape. Boats and preparations had been made in secret. Governor Semple was in charge of the Hudson Bay Co.'s interests at this time.

Mid varying vicissitudes of fortune the determination of these Scottish colonists to hew out homes for themselves was their one absorbing thought. Seventeen of these families, mostly from Kildonan, Sutherlandshire, became the first settlers of Simcoe County, Ontario. Their names remind us of the roll call of a Scottish regiment, viz.: Geo. Ross, Arthur Campbell, Geo. Bannerman, "Black" John and "Red John" Mathewson, Andrew and Charles McBeath, Donald Haman, Angus James, Robert and William Sutherland, Donald, Robert, James and Roderick McKay, in all about fifty souls. They worked their way on foot over the four hundred miles on traders' trails to Fort William. One section of the party consisting of men, children and women with infants in their arms, left Fort William in July, 1816, in nine canoes, with a Frenchman and two Indians as guides—others soon followed. An English woman pleaded with one departing to leave behind her tiny infant, but the mother clung to him risking all dangers. The child grew and as a man of immense stature was known in the settlement as "Big John" McBeath. Following the shore line cautiously along Lake Superior, they camped each night at sunset, often within sound of the roving bands of wolves. They secured wild duck, partridge and rabbit with the gun. They lost count of the days of the week, but ere they slept they gathered in the twilight to read the Word in the good old Gaelic tongue as was their wont.

Before entering Georgian Bay they halted and took a long farewell of a large party going in another direction. Here was born one who, in later years, was called "Governor" McKay, and a leader among the Gwillimbury settlers. Reaching Nottawasaga, they threaded their way down Willow River, over the nine-mile portage, made famous by the war of 1812, to Holland Landing, arriving September 5th, shoeless, hatless and sleeveless, after a journey of well nigh a thousand miles in the open. Owing to their destitution, many of the women, as well as the men worked on the Yonge street settlements.

The colony prospered, and in time spinning, "fulling the cloth," a process involving much kicking, "pounding the barley," "threshing by flail," all gave place to modern methods. A separate kirk was built in 1827, giving place to the present edifice on the town line, near Bradford.

The U. E. Loyalists.

Tell me, my father, how it was,
Oursires abandoned goods and lands,
Endured such hardships and such loss,
When joining with escaping bands.

Whence came they first before it all?
What flag whereunder were they

That came here and what did befall?
Whom of estate and goods were

My son the tale is long and sad,
And runs through many ended ages,
With hopes and passions good and bad,
The tale would crowd right many

Venturous sons of British sires, Sought fortune in the new found

Fared forth from their parental fires,
Dared sea tossed dangers in brave

They landed on Columbia's shores,
And made new homes where red

In these increased their hard earned
While oft in conflict with the red.

Thus years went by and numbers grew,
Ambition grew too large for peace,
Pretexts were sought to bonds undo
The daughter from the mother's

The mother weary with great cares,
In foreign wars for rights of men,
Oblivious of the deep laid snares,
Was feeble to resist the trend.

Then the loud war horns blast was
The booming guns then rent the air,
Although the loyals voice demurred,
For independence they declare.

Friends and kindred 'gainst each ar-
In fierce fought battles gory fields,
While wounds received were quick re-

And thus it fared till Britain yields.

Through all that war our sires were
To mother country o'er the sea,
And little loved the stars in blue
The flag the patriots floated free.

Though peace declared these were op-

By neighbors hate and greedy lust,
Who craved the goods that they pos-

Their lands were sought by men un-

Their blood oft shed to wanton greed,
Confiscation of all possessions;
Harassed the loyal Briton breed,
Embittered by unjust aggressions.

This was the land, miscalled, of Free-

"Where all were equal in the law," Every right they were decreed from.
And forced to hasten and withdraw.

In silence of the darkest night,
These hapless of all rights debarred,
Unaided were enforced to flight,
No burdens must that flight retard.

Each mother's burden was her child,
The men's were food and axe and

No beast could aid them through the

Whose tread would mark a fight

It needed all a woodman's skill,
Fresh forest trail to hide from view,
For hatred would pursue them still,
And persecutions sure renew.

The primal forest was their hope,
Trackless and wild was then its state,
Through marsh and stream their way

 FOR FLETCHER'S
 CASTORIA

For hatred would pursue them still,
 And persecutions sure renew.

The primal forest was their hope,
 Trackless and wild was then its state,
 Through marsh and stream their way
 [they grope,
 Their haste they no way could abate.

Fearing the Indians' arrows stroke,
 Also the deadly tom'hawks gleam,
 They dare not make no fire nor smoke,
 They blind their trail in every stream.

Fireless, cold, unsheltered they,
 Nightly the panther, wolf and bear,
 Snarled round their camp in seeking [prey, Protected only through their prayer.

Wild streams they oft were rafted [o'er,
 Climbed hills and rocks and mount[ain rifts,
 And when outworn and too footsore,
 They down on rafts the rivers drift.

The men were brave their wives no [less,
 No murmurers of the hardship borne,
 The children's plaints soothed with [caress,

The march resumed with early morn.
 Full many days with stunted food,
 When game and fish and berry bush,
 Their hurried search would then elude,
 Yet onward for their goal they push.

Ontario's waves at last they scan,
 Pellucid, soft that love the shores,
 They hasten to those waters span,
 To rest beneath the flag adored.

The blue thats crossed with white and [red,
 The flag of freedom wher'er borne,
 For it brave men have fought and bled,
 In many cause and hope folorn.

In rare defeat oft victory,
 Now floating o'er the promised land,
 A joyful sight for those weary,
 Several thankful footsore bands,
 A land where slave has never trod,
 An atmosphere no slave can breathe,
 A land of justice and of God,
 True freedoms found that flag be[neath.

All honor to those dauntless braves,
 Who would not bow to alien flag,
 Who moulder now in nameless graves,
 Who fled the land of endless brag.

They hewed their lands of forest tree,
 Hardships endured for many years,
 They did much for posterity,
 A nation now whose head uprears.

AVOID FAMILY DISPUTES.

Hundreds of Families Disrupted by Neglect to Make a Will.

It is unfortunate that families should be broken up and life-long enmities engendered over the division of estates, and it is generally over trivial amounts.

The rich man makes his will and avoids disagreements among his heirs. It is the man with only a few hundred, or a few thousands, who neglects to make a proper will. There might be some excuse if it were necessary to employ a lawyer and go to a large expense; but it is inexcusable for any person to fail to make a will when a BAX Will Form can be provided for 35 cents.

The BAX Will Forms are copy-righted and indisputable and with each one is furnished a specimen will properly filled out, with full instructions for your guidance. It is necessary, however, to watch for the name "BAX" on the form.

For sale by all druggists and stationers, or sent on receipt of 35 cents by the BAX Will Form Company, 280 College street, Toronto. For sale by A. E. Paul, Napanee.

Various Kinds of Manias.

At a recent congress of neurologists a paper was read in which the movement by which the growing lad caresses the first shoots on his upper lip was labeled mustachiotrepomania; the habit of twirling the cane seen in old drum majors, strepsorhabdomania; that of putting the little finger into the ear, otodactylomania. Then we have "stomatodactylomaniacs," who put the finger into the mouth; "onychophagomaniacs," who bite their nails; "harmoniomaniacs," who drum with their fingers on window panes or tables, and "trepodomaniacs," who nervously move their legs.

The Moon's Phases.

The phases of the moon are caused by its relative position to the earth and the sun, so that when it is full moon in one part of the earth it is full moon in all parts of the earth, and so for all its other phases. The moon revolves around the earth once in twenty-seven days, though on account of the earth's revolution around the sun the mean duration of the lunar month—that is, the time from new moon to new moon—is twenty-nine days, twelve hours and forty-four minutes. The "dark of the moon" is that half of the lunar month during which the moon shines least at night.

Gave Him an Overdose.

"I don't hear of your boy taking your car out at midnight any more, Barker, the way he had a habit of doing," said Wiggles.

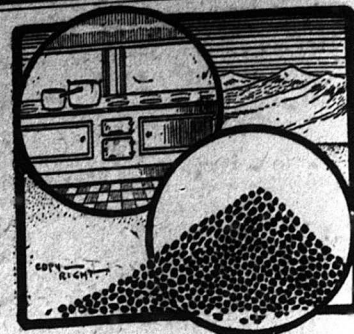

"No," said Barker, "I cured him of that."

"Really? Why, I thought that habit was incurable," said Wiggles.

"Oh, no," said Barker. "I made him get out of bed every morning at 2 o'clock and run the car forty miles for a couple of months, and he got so sick of it that he can't even stand the smell of gasoline."

what "Gold Filled" Means.

There is a notion largely held by purchasers of "gold filled" watches that the cases are, in some mysterious fashion, impregnated with gold.
As a matter of fact, the term is very misleading. Gold filling consists in the employment of two sheets of gold between which is placed a section of solder coated base metal. This metallic sandwich is heated and pressed so that the three parts are welded, with the gold outside.

Hennequin's Infant Tablets

Save Babies' Lives. For Babies and Small Children. (Made in France.)
Dr. Hennequin's Infant Tablets saved our little girl's life. Three doctors said she not live. The Tablets cured her.—Mr. E. R. McBRIDE, Napanee, Ont.
My baby was so weak from sickness that he could hardly walk. We thought he would die. We could find nothing to help him. I was given a sample package of three Hennequin Tablets; we used them; I saw a change at once. We secured the Tablets and our baby improved every day, and is now a bright, fat, good natured boy; you could not believe he was the same child. They certainly cured my baby and saved his life. I believe them to be the best medicine ever sold for babies. Mothers if your babies are not well take my advice and try these Tablets.—MRS. JAMES RIDDELL, Barrydale, Ont.
We have hundreds of such letters. If the Tablets were not what you need we would not offer to give them away and prepay them. If your baby is not well send for trial package.

Growing Use of Thermite.

Among the many improvements within recent years in railway construction in Germany is the welding together of rail ends, whereby practically continuous rails are secured. The heating substance thermite has greatly facilitated this process. Thermite is formed by the union of finely pulverized aluminium with oxygen. When this mixture is ignited, chemical combination takes place with an extraordinary development of heat, not much less than that of the electric arc. In welding rails the molten thermite is poured into the joints, and the softened rail ends are then forced closer together. The resulting weld is very firm.

Facilities Improve.

A recent report from the Department of Trade and Commerce states that the capacity of the grain elevators in the west for 1911-12 is 39,514,900 bushels, which is an increase of about five millions over the preceding year. In Manitoba the storage capacity is 21,813,800 bushels; in Saskatchewan, 20,465,000; in Alberta, 8,764,500. Ontario milling elevators have a capacity of 1,740,000 bushels; terminal elevators in the same province will accommodate 25,700,400 bushels, while the eastern transfer elevators have a capacity of 20,535,00. The grand total shows 863 stations with a total capacity of 105,466,700 bushels.

The percentage of shipments from Fort William and Port Arthur terminals to American ports has been steady.

U. S. Marines Killed.

Panama, Sept. 3.—Reliable information from Managua received here is to the effect that two American marines have been killed there. The 800 marines sent from Philadelphia on board the transport Prairie for service in Nicaragua, arrived at Balbao from Colon Friday afternoon, and camped on the docks there. They transferred their equipment to the cruiser California by tug and lighters Sunday morning.

The California arrived Saturday, but stayed outside the bay, as her captain after consultation with the port and canal zone authorities, decided not to dock the vessel for fear that she might touch bottom.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Jesus, as the antitypical offers but one sacrifice for the sins of world. In St. Paul points to the typical priests of the Jews, who offered their sacrifices year after year, but never succeeding in obtaining forgiveness for the sins of the people. The fact that those were many sacrifices "which could not take away sin," and then he says, "the one sacrifice on the Atonement Day, by the High Priest, is so complete that it leaves nothing further to be said." "Christ dieth no more; no more dominion over the living, no more dominion over the dead." This He did once offered up Himself without blemish to God. A matter so well known that we should settle in our minds not allow any theory or speculation to move us from the truth.

However we behold the sacrifice of the Atonement, Christian communions have a different view—the High Priest, the Church and the Church. Both hold the doctrine of the Church about the Atonement—this doctrine of the Church holds that Christ cancels original sins and brings them into the world through faith in the blood of Christ. But the doctrine of the Church holds that sins committed into the family of God are cancelled also, and that the blood of Christ, can take away the merit of His death having been used to atone for past sins, a fresh sacrifice is necessary for the more.

Applying this philosophy Christian brethren perform, or Low Mass, for in a congregational way Mass for special sins. These services accordingly are studies, or expositions, but more particularly a in the cleansings supposed to all who attend Mass, fail to attend Mass at a year are supposed to be defiled with the accumulation of sins. Bible students see clear one sacrifice of Christ is the sins of the whole world.

The percentage of shipments from Fort William and Port Arthur terminals to American ports has been steadily increasing during the past four or five years. It is considered that the milling in bond transit privilege given by the States will account to a considerable extent for the increase during the past two years, also the lower freight rates via United States ports to the seaboard which prevailed on occasions during the year. Canadian wheat exports to Great Britain and other countries show a decline against the figures of the previous 12 months.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, Sept. 2.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 56 cars, comprising 1034 cattle, 364 hogs, 622 lambs and 108 calves.

Butchers.

Choice butchers' steers and heifers sold at $6.50 to $6.75, and one extra load of heifers at $6.35; loads of good, $6.25 to $6.50; medium, $5.75 to $6.50; common, $4.50 to $5.00; cows, $3 to $4.40; canners, $1.50 to $2.50; bulls, $3 to $5.50.

Stockers and Feeders.

Steers, 550 to 950 lbs., are worth 45 to 55.25; stockers, $40 to $4.75.

Milkers and Springers

One choice Holstein cow sold at $110. The balance of those on sale ranged at from $50 to $70 each.

Veal Calves.

Over 100 calves sold at $3.50 to $3.60 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Over 600 sheep and lambs sold as follows: Sheep, light ewes, at $4.25 to $5; heavy ewes and rams, $3 to $3.50.

Hogs.

Prices unchanged, at $8.50 to $8.75, fed and watered, and $8.30 to $8.40 f.o.b. cars, were reported.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Sept. 2.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, west end market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Aug. 31 were 1600 cattle, 3600 sheep and lambs, 2650 hogs and 700 calves. The offerings on the market this morning for sale were 1000 cattle, 2500 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 400 calves.

An easier feeling prevailed in the market for the day today, and prices, as compared with a week ago, show a decline of 25c per hundred pounds, which was due to the more liberal supplies of common to good stock, but really choice steers were by no means plentiful, and if it had not been for the arrivals of a few good loads of northwest ranch cattle buyers would have had some difficulty in filling their wants with this class, as the quality of the cattle coming from Ontario are only grading from common to medium.

The top prices realized for picked lots of choice steers were $6.75 to $7, and sales of full loads of good cattle were made at $6.25 and $6.50, while other loads of fair stock, with some oxen in them, sold for $5.50 to $5.75 per 100 pounds.

A feature of the small-meat trade was the active demand for lambs from both the butchers and packers, and prices advanced 25c per 100 pounds, with sales of Ontario stock at $6 to $6.25. The tone of the market for sheep was also stronger.

The tone of the market for hogs continues easy.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.75 to $7; do. medium, $4.75 to $5.75; do. common, $3.75 to $4.25; canners, $2.50 to $3; do., choice to $4.75; do., $3.50; do., medium, $4.25 to $4.50; do., bulls, $3.50 to $4.50; milkers, choice, each, $60 to $70; do., common and medium, each, $40 to $50; springers, $30 to $35.

Sheep, ewes, $4 to $4.25; bucks and culs, $3.50 to $3.75. Lambs, $5.75 to $6.25. Hogs, f.o.b., $8.25 to $8.50.

Calves, $5 to $10.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Sept. 2.—Cattle—Receipts, 3500 head; active and 100 to 25c higher; prime steers, $9.50 to $9.85; ship, pink, $8.50 to $9.35; butchers, $8 to $8.75; heifers, $4.75 to $5; cows, $3 to $6.50; bulls, $4 to $8; stockers and feeders, $4.75 to $5; stock heifers, $4.25 to $4.50; fresh cows and springers, active and $2 to $3 higher, at $3 to $7.5.

Veals—Receipts, 1000 head; active and steady, $4 to $11.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 11,200; active and steady, to 5c higher; heavy, $9.20 to $9.25; mixed, $9.25 to $9.40; yorkers, $9 to $9.40; pigs, $8.50 to $9; roughs, $7.80 to $8.10; stags, $5.50 to $7; dairies, $8.75 to $9.25.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 14,000 head; steady; sheep, slow; lambs, active; lambs, $4.50 to $7; yearlings, $5.25 to $5.50; wethers, $4.75 to $5; ewes, $2 to $4; sheep, mix-

A notable characteristic of Mr. Borden is his stupendous energy. In 1907, for instance, he made a political tour of Canada, covering over 15,000 miles in twelve weeks and delivering seventy-five political speeches, to say nothing of a large number of addresses given to various organizations of a non-political character. He is also a man of admirable self-control. On one occasion he could not get a hearing at a meeting. "If you do not want to listen to me," he said, during a momentary lull, "you are not compelled to do so. I will dictate what I have to say to the press representatives." With that he walked over to the assembled newspaper men and continued his remarks in an undertone. His quiet nonchalance had the desired effect, and his speech was afterwards listened to in silence by an appreciative audience.

Another side to the character of the Canadian Premier is his passion for literature. He loves poetry—incidentally it might be mentioned that he was born, in 1854, at Grand Pre, the scene of Longfellow's best-known and most popular poem, "Evangeline"—and, possessing a prodigious memory, can repeat many of the longest poems. Once while traveling he quoted one hundred lines of Latin verse. Mr. Borden is also passionately fond of sport. He plays golf and cricket, and is a keen fisherman.

Treasure Trove Found.

There has been found near Smith's Falls a quantity of French and American silver coin dating back to the year 1700. One French coin dated 1812 and a five-franc piece has the head of Emperor Napoleon on one side. The coins were all set on edge in rows in the shape of a V. There were in all 148 coins and the value cannot at present be estimated. The money was placed in the care of Chief Phillips of Smith's Falls and he and Magistrate Sparham are the only ones other than the finders who know where the coins were found. They refuse to give any further particulars until they have heard from the authorities at Ottawa to whom a report of the valuable discovery was made. It is thought that much more coin is secreted in the same vicinity and it is expected that when the location is made known there will be a regular rush of treasure hunters to the farm.

What Clover Will Do.

A Canadian bulletin issued last year contains details of an interesting experiment in the growing of clover for the distinct purpose of increasing the nitrogen content in a tract of land. Clover was grown on this tract continuously for a nine-year period. The ground was dug over every second year and the plot reseeded, the hay that was cut each season being allowed to rot on the ground. The soil was analyzed at the beginnings of the experiment and at intervals later. At the end of nine years it was found that each acre of soil to a depth of four inches contained 472 pounds more nitrates than at the beginning, worth on an average $9.36 per acre each year, or $84.96 for the nine year period. If this clover had been fed to stock instead of being allowed to rot it is admitted that nearly as large an amount of nitrogen would have been contributed to the soil.

THE PEDDLER'S LICENSE.

How a Traveling Trader Turned the Tables on a Meddlesome Judge.

At the end of the eighteenth century, Chief Justice Mackenzie lived in Sheffield, England. The judge was feared by everybody on account of his roughness and severity. It was his pleasure to punish the people; he even used all kinds of tricks to discover punishable acts.

On a beautiful spring day, an old pedlar, laden with a heavy pack of goods, and walking slowly on the road towards Sheffield, met a rider who stopped him and said: "Hello, my friend, have you any gloves to sell? I lost mine." "No," said the pedlar, "I have no gloves, but I have many other things which your lordship may need." And he unloaded his pack and opened it.

"All right, let's see your stuff," said the stranger, and dismounted from his horse. He really bought a few things without asking for the price. But as soon as he had received his goods and had paid for them, he suddenly changed his tone and said in a severe voice: "As you are trading on the public highway, I suppose you have a pedlar's license."

"A pedlar's license!" said the old man hesitatingly and, apparently, embarrassed. "What for do you ask this question, your lordship?"

Strengthened in his suspicion by the shy behaviour of the pedlar, the man said in a rougher and more severe tone:

"I am Judge Mackenzie from Sheffield, and I ask you to show me your pedlar's license at once."

"Oh, it is your highness," said the old man very humbly, "if I could only have guessed that." And with these words he took a portfolio from his pocket and handed his license to the judge.

"Hm," said the judge, somewhat disappointed, "everything is correct; but I have no use for the stuff I just bought from you; you must take it back."

"Take it back? Hm, but how much does your highness want for it?"

"Give me what it is worth to you."

"No, that isn't fair; it isn't business-like. Your highness must make the price."

"All right; give me one-half of what I paid for the stuff," said the judge, throwing the goods he had bought at the feet of the pedlar. "Now you are making a good bargain."

The pedlar paid half of the money received; the judge mounted his horse and galloped away.

But this was by no means the end of the story. Next morning the pedlar brought the case before the court. Judge Mackenzie had to accuse himself that he had sold goods on the highway without having a pedlar's license.

All England laughed at the trick the crafty pedlar had played on the judge.

Boy Policeman.

An amusing incident occurred in the Strand in London recently. A small group of ladies and gentlemen, obviously foreigners on a visit to London, stood on the narrow pavement on the south side of the island church of St. Mary-le-Strand, waiting an opportunity to cross the road. The traffic proceeding west was fairly thick, and as no policeman is stationed just here the strangers saw little chance of getting to the opposite pavement. Suddenly a lad of the ramin order, who stood near and

AMUSEMENT FOR THE SHUT-IN

The Smart Woman Wears White Cos-

This Summer—One Piece Frocks Are a Beep to the Traveler.

My Dear Elsa—I think it is a great pity that sensible, well bred girls cannot spend their vacations at a summer resort without being subjected to all kinds of unpleasant criticism—criticism that would never come to a girl, be she ever so unconventional in behavior, were she under the care of some watchful adult.

You say it is possible for a girl of the professional class to get on perfectly well without a chaperon at a good hotel. Well, from the experience of a friend of mine, a charming woman in every respect, cultured, refined and socially irreproachable, the reverse is the case in some places. This girl has just come back from what she hoped would be a restful and beneficial holiday. A small hotel in the mountains kept by worthy country people was the place selected for the two weeks' stay. Everything was pleasing, but only the guests at this resort proved unpleasant. They were for the most part of that impossible type, the newly rich, who look with suspicion upon a woman of the business world, no matter what her personality and social background may be.

This girl after making a personal equation of her fellow guests purposely avoided any overtures of acquaintanceship and simply met their cold acknowledgment of her presence at table or on the porches with polite indifference. All would have gone well had not two of the only masculine eligibles of the place obtained an introduction to the girl and, finding her an agreeable companion, made life at the dull little town pleasant and agreeable.

Unconsciously it seems she was annexing the property of two buxom widows, one a sod and the other a grass exponent of the species who represented the loss of their swains by circulating all sorts of untruthful reports about the girl until at last the whole house was divided in its opinion as to whether this guest was a designing young adventuress or a delightfully charming woman.

In fact, so uncomfortable became the situation that an invitation from friends staying at a nearby inn to join them for the rest of the vacation was joyfully accepted by the girl. Women have gained an independence and freedom of thought and dress, and it is high time that they gained a sense of social truth and were made to feel that an injury to one is the concern of all. We have, thank heaven, been emancipated from the "crazy quilt" and impossible fancy work habit, and the next step in the right direction will be the elimination of "porch gossips" in summer boarding houses and hotels. Just to show you, Elsa, the other side

LITTLE VANITIES.

THE little fobles some men have,
To which they point with pride;
The attributes they brag about,
The hobbies that they ride,
Seem to the person looking on
As trifles not worth while
And quite sufficient in their way
To cause a man to smile.

One man will be elated much Because his watch is true
And never, never goes astray
One tick the whole year through.
He'll talk about it for a week
If any one will stop
To listen, and, indeed, I think He'd talk till he would drop.

Another man will know a way
To make a milk can tight,
And on that subject will converse
From early morn till night,
As though the one who didn't own
A can a cent would care
If when the top were fastened on It did let in the air.

Another man will know a way
To mend a rubber boot,
And still another one will have
A scheme for raising fruit
And it is just the little things,
The trifles, such as these,
That cause the men possessed of them
To think they are the cheese.

His Emancipation.

"What's his reason for rejoicing?"
"His wife has been busy trying out various brands of vacuum cleaners and he hasn't had a rug to beat this summer."

Her Opinion.

"Do you believe in votes for women?"
"Certainly."
"Well, I suppose that we might give them the ballot and try it out to see if they are capable of exercising the franchise."
"Now you are talking. And there's just one way to test them."
"Yes? And what is that?"
"Let women and only women do the voting."

Whether it was that the drivers admired the audacity of the thing, or instinctively pulled up on seeing the well-known police intimation of outstretched arms commanding a halt, the fact remains that the traffic was successfully held up by this urchin while the astonished visitors to the city sped across the road in safety. As they were rewarding the lad, the amused spectators of the scene gave him warning of the ap- proach of a policeman coming to inquire into the cause of the stop- page, and with a whoop he ran off, and the flow of traffic was resumed.

The "Death Prayer."

The South Sea Islanders believed that they could cause the death of an enemy simply by praying for it. When the ener- also held this quaint conviction and was aware that his death was being prayed for, it fre- quently worked upon his imagination to such an extent that he really did die. Ben Tillet, the English labor leader, and the dock strikers who fol- low him, evidently hold to this an- cient and barbarian belief with an intensity and sincerity quite as strong as that of any South Sea Islander. And indeed, when they all rose en masse at Tower Hill and repeated in solemn and savage unison: "Oh, God, strike Lord Devonport dead!" it was enough to shake the nerves of this man "prayed against," at least temporarily. There is a kind of im- placable Old Testament directness about the thing calculated to jar even the most literal mind.

Du Maurier and Tadema.

The resemblance between Du Maurier, the renowned French artist, and Alma Tadema, the celebrated Holland-English painter, was very striking, and very often was the cause of mis- takes and much merriment. One day, in an art gallery, Du Maurier had an animated conversation with a lady, an enthusiastic admirer of art. All at once the lady said: "I must tell you one thing, Mr. Alma Tadema, I can't understand how it is possible that people so often assert you resem- ble Du Maurier, or that they even take you for him. Such a delusion can only be possible with a person of great superficiality and—"
"Excuse me, madam, for interrupt- ing you to correct a little mistake," said the other. "I am Du Maurier."

Soap Made the Boat Go.

A writer in Science tells of an in- genious little skiff about two inches long which he constructed and pro- vided with a piece of soap for the motor. The boat was of wood, para- fined to repel the water. The soap formed the stern board of the skiff. The boat was placed on still water in a bathtub and began to move as soon as the water came in contact with the soap. After gathering headway it reached a velocity of two inches a second. The power was derived from the potential energy of the surface water film set free by the diminution of surface tension, this reduction be- ing due to solution of the soap.

the next step in the right direction will be the elimination of "porch gossips" in summer boarding houses and hotels. Just to show you, Elsa, the other side of the social shield I am going to tell you about a new and worth while means of sharing one's little excess of worldly benefits with another less for- tunate sister that has recently come to my notice.

Dorothy, you know, is constantly thinking of all kinds of lovely plans for other people, and this is her latest exploit in the altruistic line. The other day she called up on the telephone twenty girls of her acquaintance, all comfortably fixed as to spending mon- ey, and asked them to take afternoon tea with her on a certain day. Cozily over the tea and sandwiches Dorothy broached her plan, which was this: To install in the home of an elderly shut-in a telephone, to be paid for by contributions from the girls. The shut- in in question was an old lady of cheerful, sociable habits who, because of an injury to her hip, was, at least temporarily, confined to her home and who could not herself afford the mod- ern appliance.

Realizing that many friends who might not find time to call often upon their elderly acquaintance could and would find a few minutes to exchange a greeting or to relate a bit of news over the wire, Dorothy asked each vis- itor to pledge herself for the sum of 10 cents a month to install a telephone. A beautiful idea, wasn't it? And when the business part of the "tea" was over one of the girls amused the company by reciting a clever monologue, entitled "Over the Phone."

So you are going to take a run over to the other side, are you? How per- fectly delightful an ocean trip will be at this season, when old Neptune is likely as not to be in a beautiful hu- mor and give you a comfortable, "un- seasick" voyage! Now, let me men- tion right here that the time has gone by when "any old thing will do to wear on shipboard." The strong light, the tantalizing breezes and the immaculate surroundings all combine most annoy- ingly to emphasize any defects of dress. So you'll be wise to appear on deck in a trim suit, new and well fit- ting footwear and head covering. The smart thing is a suit of white whipcord with a white steamer coat of polo cloth to wear with it, topped by a close fit- ting hat of white felt tied down with a dark green veil.

If I think of anything else that you ought to have outside the regulation folderols I'll let you know. Wasn't it Emerson who said that "we have to go to Europe to be Americanized?" Well, I'm sure you will come back from your trip more of a Yankee than yours devotedly, MABEL.

Two Handles.

Everything has two handles—the one soft and manageable, the other such as will not endure to be touch- ed. If, then, your brother do you an injury, do not take it by the hot hard handle, by representing to your- self all the aggravating circumstances of the fact, but look rather on the soft side and extenuate it as much as is possible by considering the nearness of the relation and the long friendship and familiarity between you—obligations to kindness which a single provocation ought not to dis- solve. And thus you will take the ac- cident by its manageable handle.

Not Proficient.
"When you came to me you said you could keep books."
"I can."
"Why don't you, then?"
"I do."
"You couldn't keep books if you had a safe unless you forgot the combina- tion when they were locked in."

Preferred the Other Sort.
"I have the best natured husband in the world."
"I know you have, poor thing!"
"Why, why?"
"A good natured husband, like a spot- less kitchen floor, means a whole lot of work to keep in that condition."

Naturally.
"Why are women so mullish?"
"That's easy."
"All right; go ahead."
"Being so closely associated with men, they take on some of their char- acteristics."

Good For Them.
The world is but a stage, they say,
But some men might opine
If they could be stage carpenter
That would be doing fine.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

When a woman takes to reading the beauty column she is almost ready to own that she isn't as young as she once was.

When you begin to get "het up" over politics just think of the cold winter.

Taking misfortune philosophically is much easier when it is the misfortune of the other fellow.

Did you ever notice the weary smile with which a woman greets her hus- band's pet story?

A cheerful disposition is a good thing to have in stock for a rainy day.

A carefully applied compliment is seldom wasted.

When the color scheme of the world seems a deep indigo blue a gritty man feels like going where there is a change in the decorations.

Plums are the things that some peo- ple always get and others never get.

When a man's best friend hits him one under the belt he wonders if it is all worth while.

The trouble with trying to get square is that things are so askew that they won't stay so when you've squared them.

No Brighter.
"When you were a boy did you al- ways mind your father?" asked the young hopeful.

"Not always, my son," replied the governor, "but I was soundly thrash- ed every time I disobeyed him."
"Gee! Then you didn't learn any easier than I do, did you, dad?" was the retort of the y.h.

Order.
Order is the sanity of the mind, the health of the body, the peace of the city, the security of the state. As the beams to a house, as the bones to the microcosm of man, so is order to all things.—Southery

THE THREE GUARDSMEN

By ALEXANDRE DUMAS

And he moved out of the way to let the mercer pass. The latter obeyed without reply and entered the chamber, where he appeared to be expected.

Standing before the chimney was a man of middle height, of a haughty, proud mien, with piercing eyes, a large brow and a thin face, which was made still longer by a royal (or imperial, as it is now called), surmounted by a pair of mustaches. Although this man was scarcely thirty-six or thirty-seven years of age, hair, mustaches and royal, all began to be gray.

This man was Armand Jean Duplessis, Cardinal de Richelieu, then an active and gallant cavalier, already weak of body, but sustained by that

"Did you go into these houses with her?"

"Never, monseigneur; I waited at the door, as she told me."

"You are a very complacent husband, my dear M. Bonacieux," said the cardinal.

"He calls me his dear monster," said the mercer to himself. "Pest! matters are going all right!"

"Do you know the numbers?"

"No. 25 is the Rue Vaugirard; 95 is the Rue de la Harpe."

"That's well," said the cardinal.

At these words he took up a silver bell and rang it. The officer entered.

"Go," said he in a subdued voice, "and find Rochefort. Tell him to come to me immediately if he is returned."

"The count is here," said the officer, "and requests to speak with your eminence instantly."

"To your eminence!" murmured Bonacieux, rolling his eyes round in astonishment.

Five seconds had scarcely elapsed after the disappearance of the officer when the door opened and a new personage entered.

"It is he!" cried Bonacieux.

"He! What he?" asked the cardinal.

"The man that took away my wife!"

The cardinal rang a second time. The officer reappeared.

"Place this man in the care of his guards again and let him wait till I send for him."

"No, monseigneur; no; it is not he!" cried Bonacieux. "No; I was deceived. This is quite a different man and does not resemble him at all. Monseigneur is, I am sure, a very good sort of man."

"Take away that fool," said the cardinal.

appeared.

"Bring the prisoner in again," said the cardinal.

Master Bonacieux was introduced afresh, and upon a sign from the cardinal the officer retired.

"You have deceived me," said the cardinal sternly. "Your wife when going to Rue de Vaugirard and Rue de la Harpe went to meet the Duchess de Chevreuse and the Duke of Buckingham."

"Your eminence is right. I told my wife several times that it was surprising that linen drapers should live in such houses as those—in houses that had no signs—but she only always laughed at me."

"You are a worthy man, my friend," said the cardinal with that paternal tone which he sometimes knew how to assume, but which deceived none who knew him, "and as you have been unjustly suspected—well, you must be indemnified. Here, take this purse of 100 pistoles and pardon me."

"I pardon you, monseigneur!" said Bonacieux, hesitating to take the purse, fearing, doubtless, that this pretended gift was but a joke. Pardon you, monseigneur, you cannot mean that?"

"Ah, my dear M. Bonacieux, you are generous in this matter and I thank you for it. Thus, then, you will take this bag, and you will go away without being too much dissatisfied with your treatment."

"I shall go away enchanted."

"Farewell, then; that is to say, for the present, for I hope we shall meet again. Au revoir, M. Bonacieux, au revoir!"

And the cardinal made him a sign with his hand to which Bonacieux

The second commissary w bewildered as the first had simple but firm declarati musketeer. Athos was th the cardinal, but unfortu cardinal was at the Louvr king.

It was precisely at this which M. de Treville arri palace. As captain of the M. de Treville had the rig at all times.

It is well known how king's prejudices were a queen and how carefully t dices were kept up by th who in affairs of intrigue women much more than m the principal causes of th was the friendship of Anne for Mme. de Chevreuse. And yet in all this the ca not yet said a word about ti Buckingham.

At this instant M. de Trevi cold, polite and in irreproa tume. Rendered aware of passed by the presence of t and the alteration in the kir nance, M. de Treville felt hi thing like Samson before tines.

"You arrive in good time, said the king, who, when h were raised to a certain p not dissemble; "I have lea pretty things concerning yo piers."

moral power which made of him one of the most extraordinary men that ever existed, preparing to drive the English from the Isle of Re and lay siege to La Rochelle.

At first sight nothing denoted the cardinal, and it was impossible for those who did not know his face to guess in whose presence they were.

The poor mercer remained standing at the door, while the eyes of the cardinal were fixed upon him.

"Is this that Bonacieux?" asked he after a moment of silence.

"Yes, monseigneur," replied the officer.

"That's well. Give me those papers and leave us."

'At the end of ten minutes' reading the cardinal was satisfied.

"You are accused of high treason," said he slowly.

"So I have been told already, monseigneur," cried Bonacieux, giving his interrogator the title he had heard the officer give him, "but I swear to you that I know nothing about it."

The cardinal repressed a smile.

"You have conspired with your wife, with Mme. de Chevreuse and with my lord Duke of Buckingham."

"In fact, monseigneur, I have heard her pronounce all those names."

"And on what occasion?"

"She said that the Cardinal de Richelieu had drawn the Duke of Buckingham to Paris to ruin him and to ruin the queen."

"She said that?" cried the cardinal with violence.

"Yes, monseigneur. But I told her she was wrong to talk about such things."

"Your wife has escaped. Did you know that?"

"No, monseigneur. I learned it since I have been in prison and that from the conversation of monsieur the commissary, a very good kind of man."

The cardinal repressed another smile.

"Then you are ignorant of what is become of your wife since her flight?"

"Absolutely, monseigneur. But she has most likely returned to the Louvre."

"At 1 o'clock this morning she had not returned. You must, in the first place, reveal to the cardinal all you know of your wife's relations with Mme. de Chevreuse."

"But, monseigneur, I know nothing about them; I have never seen her!"

"When you went to fetch your wife from the Louvre did you always return directly home?"

"Scarcely ever; she had business to transact with linen drapers, to whose houses I conducted her."

"And how many were there of these linen drapers?"

"Two, monseigneur. One Rue du Vaugirard, the other Rue de la Harpe."

not remember him at all. "Monsieur is, I am sure, a very good sort of man." "Take away that fool," said the cardinal.

The newly introduced personage followed Bonacieux impatiently with his eyes till he was gone out, and the moment the door closed he advanced eagerly toward the cardinal and said:

"They have seen each other."

"The queen and the duke?" cried Richelieu.

"At the Louvre."

"Who told you of it?"

"Mme. Lannoy, who is devoted to your eminence, as you know."

"Why did she not let me know sooner?"

"Whether by chance or from mistrust I don't know, but the queen made Mme. de Sturgis sleep in her chamber and detained her all day."

"Well, we are beaten! Now let us try to take our revenge. How did it take place?"

"At half-past 12 the queen was with her women in her bedchamber, when some man came and brought her a handkerchief from her dame de lingerie."

"And then?"

"The queen immediately exhibited strong emotion; she rose, and with a trembling voice: 'Ladies,' said she, 'wait for me ten minutes. I shall soon return.' She then opened the door of her alcove and went out."

"How long did the queen remain out of the chamber?"

"Three-quarters of an hour."

"Did none of her women accompany her?"

"Only Donna Estafania."

"Did she afterward return?"

"Yes; but to take a little rosewood casket, with her cipher upon it; in it the diamond studs which his majesty gave to the queen."

"Mme. Lannoy, then, is of opinion that she gave them to Buckingham."

"She is sure of it."

"How can she be so?"

"In the course of the day, Mme. de Lannoy, in her quality of tirewoman of the queen, looked for this casket, appeared uneasy at not finding it, and at length asked the queen if she knew anything about it. The queen became exceedingly red and replied that, having on the preceding evening broken one of those studs, she had sent it to her goldsmith to be repaired."

"He must be called upon and so ascertain if the thing be true or not."

"The goldsmith has heard nothing of the kind."

"Right, right! Rochefort, all is not lost, and perhaps—perhaps everything is for the best. Do you know where the Duchess de Chevreuse and the Duke of Buckingham are now concealed?"

"No, monseigneur; my people could tell me nothing on that head."

"But I know, or at least I guess. They were, one in the Rue Vaugirard, No. 25; the other in the Rue de la Harpe, No. 75."

"Does your eminence command that they should be both instantly arrested?"

"It will be too late. They will be gone. But take ten men of my guards and search the houses thoroughly."

"Instantly, monseigneur."

And Rochefort went hastily out of the apartment.

The cardinal upon being left alone reflected for an instant and then rang the bell a third time. The same officer use present, for I hope we shall meet again. Au revoir, M. Bonacieux, au revoir!"

And the cardinal made him a sign with his hand, to which Bonacieux replied by bowing to the ground; he then went out backward, and when he was in the antechamber the cardinal heard him, in his enthusiasm, crying aloud: "Hurrah for the great monseigneur! Vive son eminence! Vive le grand cardinal!"

"Good!" said he, "that man would, henceforward, lay down his life for me!"

The door opened and Rochefort returned.

"Well!" said the cardinal eagerly.

"A young woman of about twenty-six, or twenty-eight years of age and a man from thirty-five to forty have lodged at the two houses pointed out by your eminence, but the woman left last night and the man this morning."

"They were the persons!", cried the cardinal, looking at the clock, "and now it is too late to have them pursued: the duchess is at Tours and the duke at Boulogne. It is at London they must be met with."

"What are your eminence's orders?"

"Not a word of what has passed; let the queen be ignorant that we know her secret. Tell Vitray to come to me, and tell him to get ready for a journey."

The instant after the man he required was before him, booted and spurred.

"Vitray," said he, "you will go with all speed to London. You will deliver this letter to milady. Here is an order for 200 pistoles; call upon my treasurer and get the money. You shall have as much again if you are back within six days and have executed your commission well."

These were the contents of the letter:

"Milady.—Be at the first ball at which the Duke of Buckingham shall be present. He will wear on his doublet twelve diamond studs; get as near to him as you can and cut off two of them. As soon as these studs shall be in your possession, inform me."

CHAPTER XI.

Men of the Robe and Men of the Sword.

ON the day after these events had taken place, Athos had not having reappeared, M. de Treville was informed by D'Artagnan and Porthos of the circumstance. As to Aramis, he had asked for leave of absence for five days and was gone, it was said, to Rouen, on family business.

M. de Treville was the father of his soldiers. He repaired, then, instantly to the residence of the lieutenant criminal. The officer who commanded the post of the Croix Rouge was sent for and, by successive inquiries, they found that Athos was at the time lodged in the Fort l'Eveque.

Athos, after the scene with M. Moncieux, declared that his name was Athos, and not D'Artagnan. He added that he did not know either M. or Mme. Bonacieux; that he had never spoken to the one or the other; that he had come, at about 10 o'clock in the evening, to pay a visit to his friend, M. d'Artagnan, but that till that hour he had been at M. de Treville's, where he had dined; "twenty witnesses," added he, "could attest the fact," and he named several distinguished gentle-

TORONTO WOMAN WELL AGAIN

Freed From Bearing Down Pains, Backache and Pain in Side by Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Toronto, Ont. — "Last October, I wrote to you for advice as I was completely run down, had bearing down sensation in the lower part of bowels, backache, and pain in the side. I also suffered terribly from gas. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now entirely free from pain in back and bowels and am stronger in every way. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound highly to all expectant mothers."—Mrs. E. WANDBY, 92 Logan Avenue, Toronto, Ontario.

Consider Well This Advice.
No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for nearly forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

fraternizes is suspected."

"Indeed, I knew nothing of the circumstance. The house may be suspected, but I deny that it is in the part of it inhabited by M. d'Artagnan, for I can affirm, sire, if I can believe what he says, that there does not exist a more devoted servant of your majesty or a more profound admirer of M. the Cardinal."

"Come, how shall we determine?" said the king.

"That concerns your majesty more than me," said the cardinal. "I should affirm the culpability."

"And I deny it," said De Treville. "But his majesty has judges, and these judges will decide."

"That is best," said the king. "Send the case before the judges; it is their business to judge, and they will judge."

"Only," replied Treville, "it is a sad thing that, in the unfortunate times in which we live, the purest life, the most incontestable virtue, cannot exempt a man from infamy and persecution. The army, I will answer for it, will be but little pleased at being exposed to rigorous treatment on ac-at your residence during the event and that he took no part in it?"

"By your glorious father, and by yourself—who are that which I love and venerate the most in the world—I swear it!"

"Be so kind as to reflect, sire," said the cardinal. "If we release the prisoner thus we shall never be able to know the truth."

"M. Athos will always be where he is to be found," replied Treville—"always ready to answer, when it shall please the men of the long robe to interrogate him."

"And he is in the Fort l'Eveque?" said the king.

"Yes, sire, in solitary confinement, in a dungeon, like the lowest criminal in France."

"What must be done?" murmured the king.

"Sign the order for his release, and all will be said," replied the cardinal. "I believe, with your majesty, that M. de Treville's guarantee is more than sufficient."

Treville bowed very respectfully, with a joy that was not unmingled with fear; he would have preferred an obstinate resistance on the part of the cardinal to this sudden yielding.

The king signed the order and Treville carried it away without delay. He made his entrance triumphantly into the Fort l'Eveque, whence he delivered Athos, whose peaceful indifference had not for a moment abandoned him.

Scarcely had the captain of the musketeers closed the door after him than his eminence said to the king:

"Now that we are at length by ourselves we will, if your majesty pleases, converse seriously. Sire, M. de Buckingham has been in Paris five days and only left it this morning."

CHAPTER XII.

In Which M. Segulier, the Keeper of the Seals, Seeks a Love Letter.

IT is impossible to form an idea of the impression these few words made upon Louis XIII.

He grew pale and red alternately, and the cardinal saw at once that he had recovered, by a single blow, all the ground he had lost.

"M. de Buckingham in Paris!" cried he, "and what does he come to do here?"

"To conspire, no doubt, with your enemies the Huguenots and the Spaniards."

"No, no! To conspire against my honor, with Mme. de Chevreuse, Mme. de Longueville and the Coude's."

"Oh! sire, what an idea! The queen is too prudent and, besides, loves your majesty too well."

"Woman is weak, M. le Cardinal," said the king, "and as to loving me much I have my own opinion respecting that love."

"None the less I maintain," said the cardinal, "that the Duke of Buckingham came to Paris for a project purely political."

"And I am sure that he came for quite another purpose."

"Mme. de Lannoy," said the cardinal, "whom, according to your majesty's command, I have frequently interrogated, told me this morning that the night before last her majesty sat up very late, that this morning she was much and that she was writing king had already gone out by another door.

The chancellor was a pleasant man. It was Des Roches le Masle, canon of Notre Dame, and who had formerly been valet de chambre to the cardinal, who introduced him to his eminence as a perfectly devout man. The cardinal trusted him and found his advantage in it.

The queen was still standing when he entered, but scarcely had she perceived him than she reseated herself and, with an air of supreme hauteur, said:

"What do you desire, monsieur, and with what object do you present yourself here?"

"To make, madame, in the name of the king, and without prejudice to the respect which I have the honor to owe to your majesty, a close perquisition into all your papers. Be kind enough to pardon me, madame, but in this circumstance I am but the instrument which the king employs."

"Examine, then, monsieur. I am a criminal, as it appears. Estafania, give the keys of my tables and my secretares."

For form's sake the chancellor paid a visit to the pieces of furniture named, but he well knew that it was not in a piece of furniture that the queen would place the important letter she had written in the course of the day.

When the chancellor had opened and shut twenty times the drawers of the secretares it became necessary, whatever hesitation he might experience, it became necessary, I say, to come to the conclusion of the affair—that is to say, to search the queen herself. The chancellor advanced, therefore, toward Anne of Austria and with a very perplexed and embarrassed air:

"And now," said he, "it remains for me to make the principal perquisition."

"What is that?" asked the queen, who did not understand, or, rather, was not willing to understand.

"His majesty is certain that a letter has been written by you in the course of the day. He knows that it has not been sent to its address. This letter must be somewhere."

"Would you dare to lift your hand to your queen?" said Anne of Austria, drawing herself up to her full height and fixing her eyes upon the chancellor with an expression almost threatening. "The letter is here," and the queen laid her beautiful hand on her bosom. "I will give it to none but the king, monsieur."

"If the king had desired that the letter should be given to him, madame, he would have demanded it of you himself, and if you do not give it up—" "Well?"

"He has, then, charged me to take it from you. Be kind enough, then, madame, to act more compliantly."

"This conduct is infamously violent!"

"The king commands it, madame. Excuse me."

"I will not suffer it! No, no, I would rather die!"

The chancellor made a profound reverence. Then, with the intention quite patent of not drawing back a foot from the accomplishment of his commission, he approached Anne of Austria, from whose eyes at the same instant sprang tears of rage. She made one step backward, became so pale that it might be

"Affairs of police!" cried the king, taking up De Treville's words: "affairs about them, monsieur? Here's a piece of work about a musketeer. Why, I would arrest ten of them, a hundred,

"From the moment they are suspect-

"the musketeers are guilty. Therefore you see me prepared to surrender my

M. the Cardinal will end by accusing me."

"Gascon headed man, will you have

"Sire," replied Treville, without low-order my musketeer to be restored to me or let him be tried."

"He shall be tried," said the cardinal.

"Well, so much the better, for in that case I shall demand of his majesty permission to plead for him."

The king became afraid of an outbreak.

"If his eminence," said he, "had not "Pardon me," said Richelieu, "but the instant your majesty considers me a prejudiced judge I withdraw."

"That's it!" cried the king; "to him, no doubt. Cardinal, I must have the queen's papers."

"But how to take them, sire? It seems to me that neither your majesty nor I can charge ourselves with such a mission."

"She has about her a certain Laporte."

"Who, I believe, is the mainspring of all this, I confess," said the cardinal.

"You think, then, as I do, that she deceives me?" said the king.

"I tell you the queen loves that infamous Buckingham. Why did you not cause him to be arrested while he was in Paris?"

"Arrest the duke! Arrest the prime minister of King Charles II! Think of it, sire! What a scandal!"

"But all the time he was in Paris you, of course, did not lose sight of him?"

"No, sire."

"Where did he lodge?"

"Rue de la Harpe, No. 75."

"Where is that?"

"By the side of the Luxembourg."

"And you are certain that the queen and he did not see each other?"

"I believe the queen to have too high a sense of her duties, sire."

"But they have corresponded. It is to him that the queen has been writing all day. M. le Duc, I must have those letters."

"There is but one means."

"What is that?"

"That would be to charge M. de Seguler, the keeper of the seals, with this mission. The matter enters completely into the duties of his post."

"Let him be sent for instantly."

"Your majesty's orders shall be executed, but the queen will perhaps refuse to obey."

"What, my orders?"

"Yes, if she is ignorant that these orders come from the king."

"Well, that she may have no doubt on that head I will go and inform her myself. Send for monsieur the keeper of the seals. I will go to the queen."

And Louis XIII., opening the door of communication, passed into the corridor which led to the apartments of Anne of Austria.

The queen was in the midst of sad thoughts when the king entered. Like those unfortunate persons endowed with a fatal gift, she brought misfortune upon everything she touched; her friendship was a fatal sign which called down persecution. Mme. Chevreuse and Mme. Vernet were exiled, and Laporte did not conceal from his mistress that he expected to be arrested every instant.

"Madame," said the king, "you are about to receive a visit from the chancellor, who will communicate certain matters to you, with which I have charged him."

"But why this visit, sire? What can
M. the Chancellor have to say to me that your majesty could not say yourself?"

The king turned upon his heel without reply, and almost at the same instant the captain of the guards, M. de Guitant, announced the visit of M. the Chancellor.

When the chancellor appeared the whose eyes at the same instant sprang tears of rage. She made one step backward, became so pale that it might be said she was dying, and, leaning with her left hand to keep herself from falling upon a table behind her, she with her right hand drew the paper from her bosom and held it out to the keeper of the seals.

"There, monsieur, there is that letter," cried the queen, with a broken and trembling voice, "take it and deliver me from your odious presence."

The door was scarcely closed upon him when the queen sank, half fainting, into the arms of her women.

The chancellor carried the letter to the king without having read a single word of it. The king took it with a trembling hand, looked for the address, which was wanting, became very pale, opened it slowly, then, seeing by the first words that it was addressed to the king of Spain, he read it rapidly.

It was nothing but a plan of an attack against the cardinal. The queen pressed her brother and the emperor of Austria to appear to be wounded, as they really were, by the policy of Richelieu, the eternal object of which was the abasement of the house of Austria; to declare war against France, and, as a condition of peace, to insist upon the dismissal of the cardinal.

The king, quite delighted, went straight to the cardinal.

"There, duke," said he, "you were right and I was wrong. The whole intrigue is political, and there is not the least question of love in this said letter. But, on the other hand, there is abundant question of you."

The cardinal took the letter and read it with the greatest attention.

"Well, your majesty," said he, "you see how far my enemies go. They threaten you with two wars if you do not dismiss me. In your place, in-truth, sire, I should yield to such powerful instances, and, on my part, it would be a real happiness to withdraw from public affairs. My health is sinking under these annoying struggles, and these never ending labors. You would be the happier for it at home, sire, and I do not doubt you would be the greater for it abroad."

"M. le Duc," said the king, "I understand you. Be satisfied. All who are named in that letter shall be punished as they deserve, and the queen herself shall not be forgotten."

"What do you say, sire? Heaven forbid that the queen should suffer the least inconvenience or uneasiness on my account. She has always believed me, sire, to be her enemy, although your majesty can bear witness that I have always taken her part warmly, even against you."

"That is true, M. le Cardinal," said the king, "and you were right, as you always are, but the queen not the less deserves all my anger."

ANOTHER PRISON FARM.

Hon. W. J. Hanna Is Trying Experiment In the North.

While the Central Prison Farm at Guelph has been developing a continental reputation for improved and successful methods in dealing with ordinary misdemeanants, a new and perhaps more ambitious scheme has been introduced by Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary, in northern Ontario. Six or eight miles from Fort William lies a tract of land comprising some six hundred acres, hitherto avoided as being unsuitable for agricultural purposes. Hon. Frank Cochrane, late Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, saw the land, found its value and immediately withdrew it from settlement. The tract has now been turned over to the Provincial Secretary for the purpose of another Central Prison. Unlike the Guelph Farm, however, the Fort William proposition was virgin land, uncleared and untouched.

On June 6 last a party of men went on, not criminals, just ordinary misdemeanants — first offenders. They set to work. First, tents had to be erected and provision made for eating and sleeping the gang. The first field of seven acres was cleared by June 8. When the organization was perfected they went to work, sixty of them in all, brawny, willing, delighted to be out in the air. In a few days they made a big dent in the surrounding forest, and are now clearing at the rate of three acres a day. Field crops

ANOTHER "BLUENOSE"

NOVA SCOTIA DIVINE GOES TO BRANDON COLLEGE.

Rev. Dr. Howard P. Whidden Is Another Example of the Faculty of Maritime Men to Reach the Top In Theological Work—He Succeeds Dr. McDiarmid as Head of the Baptist College.

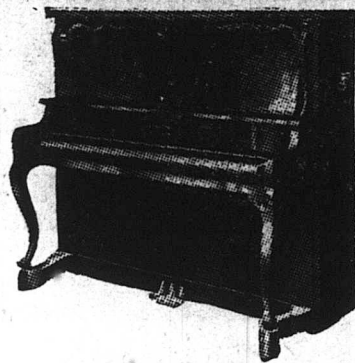

Rev. Dr. Howard P. Whidden, the man who has been chosen to succeed Dr. McDiarmid as president of Brandon Baptist College, Brandon, Manitoba, is a Bluenose by birth, and proud of the fact. He is a graduate in arts of Acadia University, Wolfville, Nova Scotia, and in theology of McMaster University, Toronto. After graduating from the Toronto institution, Dr. Whidden went West as a home missionary to Morden, Manitoba. He then returned east to Galt, and in the congregations who listened to him preach in the Bloor Street Baptist Church, Toronto, recently, were many former residents of the Manchester of Canada. While pastor at Galt he lectured in the English department of McMaster University, and this led to his being called West again to join the staff of Brandon College as a junior professor. Eight years ago he assumed the pastorate of the First Baptist Church at Dayton, Ohio, the most important charge in that section of the state, and "made good," if such a term may be used of a preacher, from the start. Always a loyal Canadian, however, he spent every summer with his wife and children in his cottage on Peninsular Lake, where he is a

Dr. Whidden served while in Ohio on the governing board of Denison University, one of the leading institutions of the state, so that he does not go to his new work unprepared. He is firm in his convictions as to the desirability of Christian education, and Canada's West will be a decided gainer by his return. He believes in a practical application of the ethics of Jesus to modern life, and his lectures in the theological department of Brandon College will be practical in their application to everyday happenings. ## LADY FRANKLIN'S ADDRESS.

Explorer's Wife Received a Flowery Welcome at Yale, B.C.

In a communication to The Week of Victoria, Mr. John T. Walbran tells an interesting story of Lady Franklin's visit to the British Columbia coast more than half a century ago:

On Vancouver Island and on the south shore of Johnstone strait is a steep and rugged range of mountains about 4,000 feet high, named by Captain Richards, in 1861, then in command of H.M. surveying vessel "Hecate," after Sir John Franklin, the Arctic explorer, and Lady Jane Franklin, his wife.

It was on the 22nd February, 1861, that Lady Franklin, then the widow of the gallant sailor, accompanied by her niece, Miss Sophia Cracroft (hence Cracroft Island and on it Sophia Point, situated on the opposite side of the strait to the Franklin Mountains), arrived at Victoria on a visit, and in March, attended by Lieutenant Hankin of H.M.S. "Hecate," detailed by Capt. Richards for this duty, proceeded by river steamer up the Fraser as far as Fort Yale, as her ladyship desired to see something of the scenery on the river. At Yale, Lady Franklin was enthusiastically welcomed and on leaving was presented with an address. This unique address which has, to the writer's knowledge, never before been published, is worthy of more than passing mention and was communicated to the writer by her ladyship's naval "aide-de-camp" who was present when it was read to Lady Franklin.

The address, as follows, was read by the Rev. William Burton Crickmer, L.A., then the Anglican clergyman

Field crops have been put in, buildings erected for the winter and some permanency given to the settlement. The scheme is just unfolding, and the way they go at it is proof that they prefer their work to jail yards.

Three acres a day and more! What will it lead to? These who are prating about prepared farms, clearings with a little shack and a barn where a settler can go in and get busy at once on his land, these are some of the things that may result from the new idea. At the present time the men are giving the province a better return than if they were held behind brick walls, and the province is giving the men a better chance to start right again, and the settler, too, in the long run is benefited. Perhaps this is a bigger scheme than it looks, and Fort William may see an agricultural development that will startle the remainder of the province.—Toronto Globe.

A Tramp Newsie.

Pittsie Ryan, a newsboy, left Montreal recently on the second stage of his trip around the world from Edmonton, Alta., for a purse of thirty thousand dollars. Pittsie was in Montreal for four days selling papers on St. James street and his attempted exploits so captivated the newsboys of the city that they formed a sort of trust with the traveler as receiver.

Pittsie started on his trip from Edmonton on April 23 without a cent in his pocket. He is to pay his way by selling papers and is to have in his pockets $500 on his return.

He is clad in a white suit with the inscription "Pittsburg Ryan, Edmonton, on a tour of the world," in black letters on the collar of the jacket.

He says that he has covered 2,800 miles since leaving Edmonton and he has sold papers in Calgary, Regina, Moose Jaw, Saskatoon, Portage la Prairie, Winnipeg, Kenora, Port Arthur, Ottawa, Toronto, Rochester and Montreal.

Pittsie Ryan is twenty-seven years of age and he has been a newsboy almost from the cradle. He went around the world in 1905-10 in four and a half years on the same terms as the present trip.

Asked how much he has saved since he commenced his present tour Pittsie said nothing yet. He was too busily engaged in attempting to secure enough money for his passage. At this juncture a young man who had been listening to his story to the reporter stepped forward, asked him to call at his office, and said he would get him a free passage to Great Britain.

Britain's Tobacco Bill.

The consumption of tobacco is steadily increasing in the United Kingdom, and the figures for 1911 are the highest ever reached in this kingdom; 94,496,750 pounds of tobacco were consumed, and the total amount of the tobacco bill reached the enormous sum of £29,164,867. With a population of 45,311,078 this gives us a little more than two pounds of tobacco a head, at a cost of 12s. 10 1/2d. each. The cost works out at £2 17s. 11d. a family, or 1s. 11 1/2d. a week.

There is one thing his students will learn to do—and that is to read and speak distinctly and with proper emphasis—for Dr. Whidden is a trained elocutionist, and one of the best interpretative readers of Scripture in the Canadian pulpit. A strong sense of humor, and a ready found of anecdotes, is another characteristic which ought to make for his success as Brandon's president.—Toronto Star Weekly.

Relics of the Past.

During excavation work, a part of the wall which once enclosed old St. Paul's has been discovered at the corner of Paternoster row and St. Paul's alley, London. The wall, which is about sixty feet long, is made of chalk and rubble, and was built in the 12th century. On the same site pieces of a Roman amphora, Roman vases, and some Samian ware have been found. Other "finds" include a camel's skull unearthed in High Holborn and a large quantity of pipes of the 18th century. Under some old stables in Bartholomew close—one of the oldest parts of London—three Norman arches have been found. They are close to one another, and are believed to have formed part of the cloisters of the Priory which once stood on this site. Their excavation is likely to be a matter of considerable difficulty, as they are built in with stones and bricks for the new buildings which have been laid against them.

To Prevent Collisions.

The new system of preventing collisions at sea proposed by Sir Hiram Maxim is based on a theory of the bat's sixth sense. A century ago Abbe Spallanzani proved that bats could pursue and catch insects without seeing them. The vibrations or waves from a bat's wings, though of too low frequency to produce sound, are reflected back from obstacles they strike, and it is supposed that the bat is able to detect the reflections, and thus to guide its flight. Soundings for similar echoes could be made on shipboard. With a wave generator of 200 or 300 horsepower, vibrations could be sent out of about the same frequency as those of a bat, and it is believed that they would be reflected from five miles away sufficiently strong to be detected. A trial apparatus has been made.

Peat Fuel Supply.

The Mines Branch of the Government Department of Mines recently announced that its demonstration of the commercial possibilities of peat as a fuel in Canada had been successfully completed, and that henceforth the activities of the branch would be applied in another direction, probably the economic production and testing of fuel, concerning which the department already has a man in the west.

The peat industry in Canada will now become a matter of private enterprise. There are two big plants under construction, one at Alfred, Ont., and another at Farnham, Que., which are expected to supply Ottawa and Montreal and possibly other cities with cheap fuel. Their capacity is about 30,000 tons per year.

Wealthy Settlers.

The wealth of the immigrants settling in the west during the five years ended March 31 was estimated as follows: British, cash, $37,546; effects, $18,773,000. United States, cash, $157,260,000; effects, $110,982,000.

...aide-de-camp, who was present when it was read to Lady Franklin.

The address, as follows, was read by the Rev. William Burton Crickmer, M.A., then the Anglican clergyman at Yale, and no doubt the reverend gentleman had a large share in its composition:

"May it please your ladyship. We the inhabitants of Yale representing well nigh every nation under heaven, esteem the present as the proudest moment in the annals of our country and in the existence of our Town.

To-day is our Town of Yale forever linked in history with the name of one, the memorial of whose abundant kindness and wifely devotion will never die and at whose immortal veneration Princes bow down and Kings and Queens of the Earth may envy but never win.

"From the bottom of our hearts do we pray God to bless your ladyship with many happy days, and when called in God's own providence from this holy Church militant, to join the heroic in the Church triumphant, may the grave be transmuted, by the touch of a living faith, into the gates of everlasting life and a glory, more lasting than the perishing Laurels of Earth, forever crown the double brows of the noble pair whom the whole civilized world of Christendom delighted to honor."

History has not recorded Lady Franklin's reply. The address, engrossed on parchment, was placed in a small cedar-wood case and handed to her ladyship.

On returning to Victoria a picnic was organized by the city authorities, etc., to the head of the Victoria Arm and was held on the 21st March when the canoe carrying her ladyship was manned by eight Canadian boatmen in costume. On the 24th, Lady Franklin and her niece left Esquimalt for England, via the Sandwich Islands and Australia, in the steamer Panama, to the strains of Auld Lang Syne played by the band of H.M.S. Topaze.

The address was given to the writer, long after those days, by Commander Hankin, R.N., when nearly all interested parties had passed away, and this gentleman had also told the writer that often on board the Hecate, at the captain's dining table, over the walnuts and the wine, Capt. Richards, smiling around at his guests, would say: "Now Hankin give us the address to Lady Franklin." Commander Hankin laughingly finished by saying, "When, of course, being my superior officer, there was nothing else for me to do but get up and obey."

The Englishman is Ontario.

"Is the labor problem of western Ontario to be settled by the Englishman?" says a Glencoe, Ont., man. "The present indications point in that direction. A few years ago you could find very few English immigrants in West Middlesex, and only a family or two in Glencoe. To-day you meet fine, intelligent men from the better classes of old England almost everywhere. Among the newer arrivals are mechanics and artisans—men who are proving themselves good citizens."

This opinion represents the experience of many towns and cities in western Ontario, says The London Free Press. There is an immigration into these parts of men from the old land going on to-day that is even more marked than was the immigration which resulted in the settlement of Ontario in large part by this same class of immigrant now approaching a century ago.

TURKEY GROWING TIME.

They'll Be Fine Along About Thanksgiv- ing or Christmas Day.

Turkeys can be grown with less care and attention than any of the domestic fowls except geese. But unfortunately on almost all farms turkeys are al- lowed the range of the farm, no mat- ter how large, and this causes trou- ble. In the first place, they are apt to make their nests where they are hard to find, and after the young ones are hatched they will be over too much territory to be good for the little ones before they are a month or two old. After that time unlimited range can be

The law of New York and probably of others provides that each owner of two adjoining tracts of land, except when they otherwise agree, shall make and maintain a just and equitable por- tion of the division fence between such lands unless one of such owners shall choose to let his lands lie open to the use of all animals which may be law- fully upon the other's lands and does not permit any animals lawfully upon his premises to go upon lands so lying open.

The public holidays that have be- come firmly established as such by custom are Christmas, New Year's, Memorial or Decoration day, Fourth of July and Thanksgiving day. These a man working by the month may claim as holidays without affecting his salary, excepting, of course, in cases of necessity, where his services are re- quired on such days in order to avoid or prevent loss to the employer.— Breeder's Gazette.

PESTS IN GRAIN BINS.

Must Be Killed Before Storage of Harvest if Damage is to Be Averted.

A few cents' worth of carbon bisul- phide will kill the insects hiding in the cracks of your bins waiting for the new grain. Insects injurious to stored grains, says G. A. Dean, a bug spe- cialist at the Kansas Agricultural col- lege, work so vigorously that the farm- er must either kill them, dispose of his grain or sit still and allow them to damage it. Killing these pests before the grain is stored prevents much dam- age in the fall and winter, he says.

Dust, dirt, rubbish, refuse grain, flour and meal serve as breeding places for these pests. Fresh grain should not be exposed to attack by being placed with the old which already is infest- ed. Throw this out. Unless the old grain was badly infested with any one of the four or five common injurious insects it may not be necessary to fumigate now, but a thorough clean- ing of the floor, walls and ceiling should not be neglected. To avoid in- festation in the stack the grain should be thrashed as soon after harvesting as possible. Considerable damage has been done by these insects to stacked wheat and oats in Kansas in the last four or five years.

One pound of carbon bisulphide when the temperature is about 90 degrees will fumigate 500 cubic feet of space. At 80 degrees 400 cubic feet will be thoroughly treated. The building and bins must be as nearly air tight as possible while fumigating. The car- bon bisulphide should be placed in shallow pans at the top of the bins or building. Evaporation is rapid, the vapor settling to the bottom of the bin and poisoning the insects. If the grain is not to be used for seed it is well to allow the vapor to remain in it for forty-eight hours. Doors and windows should be opened wide after the fumi- gation and the bins aired thoroughly one or two hours before entering.

One should be very careful in han- dling carbon bisulphide, as it is highly inflammable. Electric lights must not be used, since when turning them on or off there always is danger of pro- ducing a spark. It is not safe to have heat of any kind in the building when the fumigation is in progress.

TORTURED FROM BABYHOOD

"Fruit-a-tives" Cures Constipation

Miss E. A. GOODALL

EDMONTON, ALTA., Nov. 20th, 1911

"I have been a sufferer since baby- hood from that terrible complaint, Constipation. I have been treated by physicians, and have taken every medicine I heard of, but without the slightest benefit. I finally concluded that there was no remedy in the world that could cure Constipation.

About this time, I heard about "Fruit- a-tives" and decided to try them. The effect was marvellous.

The first box gave me great relief, and after I had used a few boxes, I found that I was entirely well.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine that ever did me any good and I want to say to all who suffer as I did—"Try this fruit medicine and you will find—as I did—a perfect cure"

(MISS) E. A. GOODALL

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fruit and the only one that will positively and completely cure you of Constipation.

about five inches long, and this leaves two ends of three and a half inches to be welded together, forming the shank.

When inserting in a handle the scal- per is bent at the shank so as to make a slight angle with the handle. The scalper is the lightest and most effi- cient tool we have for working in sweet potatoes. With it even green hands can do fairly good work with little in- jury, as the plant is protected from the two extremes of the blade or cutting edge by the rounded corners made by the unsharpened rod. The scalper takes the place of a hoe everywhere except in heavy soil or where soil must be pulled up to the hill. Although used mainly for sweets, we find it valuable

A FINE SPECIMEN.

allowed unless they are disposed to go into places where they may come to harm, says a correspondent of Farm Progress.

To raise turkeys in the way that causes least trouble and always increases the raising of the largest flock is as follows:

First fence off with a small meshed tigh woven wire fence—say seven or even eight feet high—several acres of land. It is better if some of the land is covered with brush of almost any sort and, if possible, some open land and running water on it. In such inclosures, if there are good places for them to make their roosts, the turkey hens can make their own nests and sit on their eggs where laid.

And when they have hatched the hens and young ones can remain in the inclosure and roost there and be fed there till the young ones are three months old. With the same arrangements along these lines we formerly raised large numbers of turkeys at a minimum cost and sold them at a fine profit. After they got half grown and had become edible we trained them to come to the houseyard and roost in a large tree to save them from possible poultry thieves.

We have always fed our very young turkeys on crumbled hard boiled eggs for a few days and afterward well baked corn bread and a little wheat, then cracked corn and finally whole corn.

THE HOME PARTNER.

A seldom mentioned but most important member of an agricultural partnership is the woman. If she wasn't on the job to keep the household in order and the food supply coming regularly and plentifully, the present day serious disturbance over the high cost of living would be replaced by a starvation panic that would paralyze, for once she quit the job the hired man and the foreman and the "big boss" would all hit the pike for the nearest town or city in short order.—Long Island Agronomist.

Gleaned From Law Books.

In the great majority of the states two witnesses are necessary to the validity of the will, in a few states three witnesses are required, and in a few others, where the will is written entirely in the handwriting of the testator, no witnesses are required. Some states require the addresses of witnesses to be inserted after their names, and this is good practice even where not required.

or off there always is danger of producing a spark. It is not safe to have heat of any kind in the building when the fumigation is in progress.

No man should be contented with the average yield of crops.
The average is between the high yield and the low yield and is so far below the high that no one should be satisfied with such returns for his labor.—Farm and Ranch.

"SCALPER" FOR WEEDS.

Homemade Tool That Does Good Work Around Sweet Potatoes, Onions, Etc.

This "scalper" for weeds is a simple affair and can easily be made by any blacksmith in a short time, and the cost, aside from the handle, need not exceed 20 cents. It is made of an iron rod about twenty-four inches long and three-sixteenths to one-fourth of an inch in diameter. This rod is bent in the form of a triangle and the two ends welded together so as to go in an ordinary hoe handle. Before bending, however, six inches in the center of the rod (afterward the base of the triangle) should be heated and pounded out to make a flattened surface at least one-half inch wide with a slight bevel so that one side will be sufficiently thin to make a reasonably sharp edge.

the place of a hoe everywhere except in heavy soil or where soil must be pulled up to the hill. Although used mainly for sweets, we find it valuable for working in strawberries, cabbage, onions, watermelons, cantaloupes, etc., and it proves a great help in a fight against grass and weeds.—Rural New Yorker.

Harvesting Wheat.

Wheat should not be allowed to get overripe before being cut because there is more waste from shelling, and it does not make so much or so good flour if the outer covering becomes too thick and hard. More goes to bran.
The practice of setting it up in round shocks and capping with two sheaves broken over in the middle is not favored as much as it used to be.—American Cultivator.

A Tub Secret.

Filling the bathtub sometimes makes more noise than one likes, especially late at night or early in the morning.
To prevent noise attach a piece of rubber hose to the faucet long enough to reach the bottom of the tub. There will be no noise or spattering of water.

The members of the Napanee Fire Brigade were in Belleville on Monday, (Labor Day) and assisted in the program of sports. The frequent showers of rain put a damper on everything. Everyone who took part in the parade received a good soaking besides being liberally spattered with mud. Napanee firemen got third money in the hose reel race, their time being 40 1/2 seconds, and is considered good time, it being a wonder they finished at all, as the mud on the track was awful. Belleville won second money, their time being 43 1/2 seconds, and Deseronto got first, their time being 37 1/2 seconds.

The late General Booth and the Greatest Evil that Threatens the Church and the World in the 20th Century

At the beginning of the present century the following question was sent to a large number of the leading men of Great Britain and the United States: "What is the greatest evil that threatens the Church and the world at the beginning of this century?" This question was sent to doctors, lawyers, members of parliament, ministers, presidents of colleges, professors, public school teachers, etc. A large number of interesting and suggestive answers were given. Here is the unique and characteristic answer of the late General Booth: "Religion without the Holy Ghost; Christianity without Christ; Forgiveness without Repentance; Salvation without Regeneration; Politics without God; Heaven without Hell." Rev. S. Sillery will preach on this answer of Gen. Booth's on Sunday evening in Trinity Church.

HOW THE TIGER KILLS.

He Never Faces His Prey, But Attacks It on the Flank.

I have taken considerable trouble to find out how tigers kill large game. Some time ago I was asked to come and see a full grown bullock that had been killed by a tiger. On examining it I found the animal had its neck broken, and there were claw marks on the nose and shoulder, but nowhere else. There was no doubt that the tiger had jumped at the bull and landed on the shoulder, and when the bull turned his head to gore the tiger he must have put his claw out and with a sudden jerk broken the neck.

On another occasion I went to see a young buffalo which had been killed in the same way. Malays who have actually seen a tiger killing a buffalo told me they saw the same thing happen; also that in dragging off a heavy carcass, such as buffalo or bull, he gets most of the weight across his shoulders.

This must be fairly correct, as I have often followed a kill, and the marks left indicate that only a portion of the animal was trailing along the ground. I have known a full grown bull, which ten men could not move, dragged for two miles by a tiger in a heavy jungle, where roots of trees and swamp had to be gone through. In no case have I seen the pug marks facing the wrong way except when stopping to feed, which proves he must carry a portion of the animal over his shoulder.

The old idea of a tiger killing large game by a blow from his paw is nonsense. Besides, in India a tiger never faces his prey, but attacks him or the flank unless charged. Another curious fact that may seem like a fairy tale is that a tiger does not seem to mind a small lamp being tied over a kill about ten feet high, but will come and feed. I have known three occasions when this has been tried, and each time a tiger has come to feed upon the carcass.—London.

WONDERFUL MIRAGES.

Those Seen In the Winter Twilights
In Northern Alaska.

The most wonderful mirages ever beheld by mortal eyes are those that are seen in the twilight winter days in northern Alaska. These remarkable ghastly pictures of things, both imaginary and real, are mirrored on the surface of the waste plains instead of upon the clouds or in the atmosphere.

Mimic lakes and water courses fringed with vegetation are to be seen pictured as real as life on the surface of the snow, while grassy mounds, stumps, trees, logs, etc., which have an actual existence some place on the earth's surface, are outlined against mountains of snow in all kinds of fantastic shapes.

Some of these objects are distorted and magnified into the shapes of huge, ungainly animals and reptiles of enormous proportions. The fogs and mists are driven across these wastes by the winds, and as the objects referred to loom up in the flying vapors they appear like living creatures and seem to be actually moving rapidly across the plain.

At other times they appear high in the air, but this is a characteristic of the northern mirages that are seen near the seashore. When the vapors and mists are driven out to sea the images mirrored in them appear to be lunging through the waters at a terrific rate of speed, dashing the spray high in the air, while huge breakers roll over them and onward toward the mountainous islands beyond and against which they appear to be dashing.

Monstrous serpents, apparently several hundred feet long, sometimes with riders on their backs; men on horseback thirty to fifty feet in height, animals and birds of all kinds of horrible shapes and colors seem to be scurrying past, racing and chasing each other until they are lost in the twilight fogs or dashed to pieces upon the rocky islands mentioned above and which are twenty miles out to sea.
